

97500.77 Medication

Medication means any chemical compound, remedy or biological substance, which may be administered to patients by any route as an aid in the diagnosis, treatment, or prevention of disease or other abnormal condition, for relief of pain or suffering, or to control or improve any psychological or pathological condition. Products which contain medications but which are primarily used for cosmetic or other non-therapeutic purposes are not medications as defined above.